@Regencygirl123 @mitchellvii first of all Biden executive orders don't incentivize human trafficking as human traffickers aren't interested in citizenships, likewise the majority of illegal immigrants are not criminals and in fact some studies(such as the one linked below) show lower rates of crime committed by these individuals, it is also unclear if the extensive path to citizenship is in fact effective at routing out potential bad actors hence why there is a review of that system.

@mitchellvii Ok so for one the turnout in 2020 election was 66.7 percent while in 2012 it was 55% in 2016 and roughly that amount in 2012 and 2016 therefore there is going to be a lot more votes for both candidates. So comparing just the number of votes isn't accurate in measuring a candidates popularity. Instead look at the percentage of overall votes, you'll find trump won 46% of the votes in 2016 losing the popular vote and this year he still won 46% of the votes so yes more people votes for him but thats a result of larger turnout not a genuine increase in popularity.

@mitchellvii Actually the executive order allows an easier path to US citizenship therefore no longer making them illegals and allowing children to join their already legalized immigrant parents in the US.

@PrisonPlanet Thats funny because the first order mandates a reuniting of any families separated at the border, the 2nd and 3rd orders a review of trumps immigration policies and other previous policies. However his order doesn't actually open borders or reduce the authority of border patrol, or anything that would substantially reduce BP effectiveness. So I'm sorry but this guy is talking out of his ass.
